JULY 4 FUND LACKING

Celebration Committee Appeals to Public.

PLANS IN DANGER OF FAILURE

Unless $1,400 More is Contributed the Big Programme, Which Included Pyrotechnics, Regatta, and Elaborate Decorations, May Be Abandoned or Viciously Curtailed.

Commissioner Rudolph, chairman of the joint committee of the Board of Trade and the Chamber of Commerce which is preparing for a safe and sane celebration of July 4, announced yesterday that more money is needed to carry out the plans.

The programme agreed upon demands at least $3,000, and the amount now in the treasury is about $1,500. Unless some public-spirited and generous citizens come forward with enough to make up the difference, it is very likely that there will not be much of a celebration.

The committee has not given up all hope, for 300 circulars were sent out yesterday to those who contributed to the fund last year, telling them of the condition this year, and asking that they either increase their contributions or ask others to contribute.

Fireworks to Cost $2,000.
In the items of cost for the celebration the committee places the fireworks alone at $2,000—more than the total amount of the money on hand. In addition to these the medals and prizes for the athletic and swimming events, the canoe races, the regatta, the erection of the stands and the hiring of a band are all to be considered. These will certainly bring the needed amount up another $1,000.

"The reluctance of the people to contribute is all the more remarkable when the great success of the celebration last year is considered," said a member of the committee. "The record of the Fourth of July, 1909, was remarkable. There was a grand parade, a regatta, fireworks, the hospitals had fewer cases than the average of an ordinary day, there were few arrests for drunkenness or disorderly conduct, and there was only one offense against the discharge of firearms law. This was committed by a foreigner, who did not know about the regulation forbidding private celebrations."

Hopes Were Running High.
When interviewed on the subject yesterday, Commissioner Rudolph deplored the lack of patriotism, and said it would be retrograding for Washington to fail to have a celebration this year, after the one that was held last season.

"This city was one of the first to take up the idea of a 'safe and sane Fourth,' and here we are lacking the necessary funds to carry it through," said the Commissioner. "We hope the contributions of the citizens, owing to this final appeal, will more than make up the $1,400 that is lacking to insure a celebration of Independence Day that will outrank any of past years. If the people could only realize the difference between a celebration of this kind and one of the old-time affairs, with their numerous cases of injury, lockjaw, and deaths, I am sure that they would contribute willingly."

The programme for the fireworks and the illumination of the Avenue and other prominent streets was submitted to the Commissioner by J. Fred Kelley, chairman of the fireworks committee, yesterday. It includes many features which have never been seen here before, among them a "Battle in the Skies" and an illumination of Pennsylvania avenue with 20,000 electric lights.

Contributions may be sent direct to W. V. Cox, treasurer, at the District Building, or to The Washington Herald, which will forward them.

C. E. PRESIDENT HONORED.
William A. Dayton, Jr., tendered Reception Before Departure.

William A. As a slight token of the society's esteem for him, he was presented with a silk umbrella. After a social hour, refreshments were served, and the hymn, "God be with you till we meet again," was sung. Prayers were offered by the pastor, Rev. W. W. McMaster.

Mr. Dayton has been a most valuable member of this society, serving as president more than two years, and this year as chairman of the prayer meeting committee, assistant superintendent of the Junior Society, assistant superintendent of the Sunday School, and superintendent of the Chinese Bible School.

ACCUSED BRIBER GIVES BAIL

Grand Jury Indictment Returned
Against Peter G. Thompson.

Charges that President of Paper Company Gave Maj. Zantlinger $100 for Influence.

Peter G. Thompson, sr., president of the Champion Casket Paper Company, of Hamilton, Ohio, against whom the grand jury returned an indictment for alleged bribery in connection with furnishing postal card stock to the government, gave bail yesterday afternoon in the sum of $5,000, the United Security Company qualifying as his bondsman.

It is charged in the indictment that on May 2, 1910, Thompson "unlawfully did offer and give to Maj. W. P. Zantlinger, an official of the United States, $100, with intent to influence the action and decision of that officer on a matter pending before him and by law brought before him in his official capacity, and to induce the officer to do an act in violation of his lawful duty."

The grand jurors say that it was left to Maj. W. P. Zantlinger to supervise the stock furnished under the contract and to reject any not coming up to the requirements as designated in the specifications.

It is asserted that Maj. Zantlinger rejected large quantities of stock on January 15 and April 20 last, and that while other shipments were awaiting inspection on May 2 last, it is alleged, Thompson sent the $100 complained of to Maj. Zantlinger.

TAVERN COBWEBS MUST GO.
Health Commissioner Says Shoemaker's Is Not Only Place.

Health Officer Woodward, speaking of the order that has gone forth concerning the cleaning up of Shoemaker's tavern, said yesterday that it was not an order particularly directed against any one place.

"One might think," said he, "from reading some of the stories of the affair that there is a conspiracy in this office to deprive the place in question of its 'historic cobwebs,' as they are spoken of. Imagine cobwebs being historic or considered relics. True, they are relics in the sense that they have been there for years—and that is just what is objected to. If they were clean cobwebs we would not object in the least."
